ABSTRACT

A method and system for programming a software development environment to reserve memory space for direct access by a remote direct memory program.